

SELF

<http://www.self.com/beauty/blogs/beyondthebeautypages>

Snip. Snip. Off with my hair!

Thursday, April 23, 2009 at 5:00 PM

posted by Nicole Catanese

This morning started like any other. I pressed snooze several time before rolling out of bed. Fed my two kittens some breakfast. Then ran out the door with 10 minutes to walk on up to West Broadway. While I knew that I had a 9 a.m. appointment with hair guru Laurent D. of Prive Salon, I did not know that I'd casually pull up the nerve to give him the go ahead to chop off about 6 inches of my signature style--my beloved ultra long hair. His (and my) inspiration? Drew Barrymore's shoulder sweeping, totally carefree waves. Watch him work his scissor magic in the on-the-cuff video below (gotta luv the flip video!):

Now, I can only hope that I style it just as fabulously as him when left to my own devices! Also, you've got to check out his latest product sensation--shampoo and conditioner that comes in a mousse-like texture that foams up even more with water. (Check out Prive Concept Vert.) It's like magic right in your very own hands! It's super cool to use--like a science experiment in your shower--but also eco-friendly. The sudz won't contaminate the water supply and the packaging is completely recyclable. Or even better: finish off a can (it will take up to 40 washes to reach the bottom), tote it back to a Prive Salon (in NYC, LA and FL) and Mr. Laurent will ship it back to the manufacturer to be reused. Cool, right???

And.....what ya think of the new do?

Courtesy of FGPR